“Sport Disrupted: Sex_uality Matters”

October 30-31, 2019 @ Heinrich-Böll-Stiftung/Berlin

Sport is about performance only, so sports organisations claim, and sports policies promote ‘sports for all’. Yet, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression and sex characteristics still affect participation. Grassroots and nonprofit LGBTIQ initiatives, activist athletes, sports policy makers and social scientists will discuss

- effects of sports gender binary and heteronormativity on amateur and professional athletes
- consequences of homophobia / transphobia / interphobia on the daily lives of amateurs and professionals
- sports as tool for empowering LGBTIQ people
- visions and possibilities for an inclusive and non-binary sports world
- challenges for and the meaning of ‘fair’ competition
- lessons to learn from non-binary grass roots sports and LGBTIQ projects

This conference addresses the role of SOGIESC in sports in the light of current restrictions on human rights and in hope of a more inclusive future.
